ABOUT MARLA

Marla is the published author of My Thoughts Abandoned and co-author of Brave Women, Strong Faith. As a freelance writer, blogger, and speaker, she has written for and been featured in many national publications including: NASCAR, What to Expect, Stars and Stripes, and many others.

Marla's Blog, Hood Cents, was founded in 2017, in hopes of reaching people who face financial challenges. Hood Cents is a blog written for people wanting to cultivate positive financial habits while living on a tight budget. Hood Cents uses both conventional and unconventional methods to teach readers how to save money and live a frugal lifestyle.

Marla is also the co-founder of the Bautista Project Inc. a nonprofit organization that provides basic living essentials, mentorship, educational resources and reintegration services to homeless community members. She is a community leader and an avid volunteer.

TESTIMONIALS

Whether writing an inspirational profile on a history making NASCAR driver, a heartfelt description of life through the eyes of a military child or sharing a time saving family dinner recipe with photo, Marla is one of most diverse contributors to the Stars and Stripes publication.

She has both written on assignment and submitted on the subject of her choice, but her pieces are all of high value for the military audience that we worked together to engage.

Her unique writing perspective comes from a place of passion and challenges faced in the adventurous life of a military family.
